Course Description:

Research has repeatedly demonstrated the effectiveness of the Adult Learning Theory. Effective instructors organize their curriculum in a logical, standardized format which identifies and supports well developed and relevant learning objectives. Moreover, an effective instructor must remain cognizant of the degree to which his audience is engaged. The proficient instructor is one who demonstrates the capacity to adapt his or her delivery techniques to ensure the audience remains focused on the material being presented.

This course will address each of the areas noted above while providing students with an opportunity to place each of these instructor core competencies into practice while being peer critiqued and instructor evaluated.

Course Topics:

- Adult Learning Theory
- Lesson Plan usage and creation
- Public Speaking Skills
- Responding to Classroom challenges
- Use of training aids
- Evaluating student progress

Evaluation Methodology

Attendees will be required to satisfactorily develop a lesson plan and present a 15-20 minute presentation from their lesson plan. Lesson plans will be graded pass/fail. Presentations must exhibit course core competencies and will be graded on a pass/fail basis by the instructional staff.
